

Parts of a Tomato Plant

Flowers make fruit and seeds.

Fruits hold seeds.

Leaves get sunlight and make sugar. The plant uses sugar as food.

Stems carry water, nutrients, and sugars throughout the plant. They also hold the leaves.

Roots take in water and nutrients. They also hold the plant in place.

